This invention relates to novel compositions of matter and to novel methods for producing such compositions. Substituted quinoline-4-one-3-carboxylic acids are useful as intermediates in the preparation of combinatorial libraries of. beta.-lactams as described by Chung et al. (J. Med. Chem., 1994, 37, 9-15), and in the synthesis of 3-alkylidenecarbostyrenes as described by Krische et al. (J. Amer. Chem. Soc., 1993, 115, 8984-8986). A method for the production of quinoline-4-one-3-carboxylic acids is described by Jelink et al. (J. Med. Chem. 1987, 30, 221-228). The compounds are prepared by diazotization of substituted quinolines followed by coupling of the diazonium salt with an aldehyde or ketone, and subsequent reduction of the resulting quinoxalinone derivative. Electro-optical field sensor having a diffraction grating, especially for motor vehicle use, is known from EP 0,523,967 B1. A first light beam generated by a light source is directed through the diffraction grating onto the photodetector. A second light beam which represents the return light from the object is likewise directed through the diffraction grating onto the photodetector. In the case of the sensor described in EP 0,523,967 B1, the
