LAKELAND — Fireworks shoots off the end of the lighthouse, the fireworks show over Lakeland is at the Viera Medical Mall. Polk County's Red Cross is going on sale to the public, a couple-of-days-off-before-the-Fourth — and the week-long trend of cool temperatures — all come together for what's sure to be a fantastic holiday in Florida. That's if you can find a place to stay. From the Florida Association of Realtors: "In a further announcement, the Florida Housing Market Activity Index fell to a nearly three-year low in July. It recorded a 4 percent decrease from June to July. The index has been in the negative territory since the third quarter of 2014, as a sharp drop in buyer traffic sparked a steep decline in pending home sales, according to the news release." Coastal and inland waterfront properties are in demand — probably because of the tax benefits and Florida's beautiful beaches — and housing listings are extremely difficult to come by, according to Realtors. Pending home sales, or contracts signed to buy a home in the next 30 days, were down to a "record low" in July, according to Realtors Association of the Greater Tampa Bay. "When it comes to the holiday weekend, the demand for housing over the summer months is very high and the supply of homes is extremely low, and that makes it almost impossible for buyers to find homes and then for sellers to sell their homes," said Florida Realtor Association President Tracy Shelton.

I've the following code which I try to convert a String to BigDecimal and also to Double. private static BigDecimal toBigDecimal(String str) { return new BigDecimal(str); } private static double toDouble(String str) { return new BigDecimal(str).doubleValue(); } I'm not sure about its validity. If we say the value 0.0001 is less than 0.0? I also try: private static BigDecimal toBigDecimal(String str) { return new BigDecimal(str); } private static double toDouble(String str) { return (double)new BigDecimal(str).doubleValue(); } When I try to use BigDecimal.valueOf(Double.parseDouble(str)) it throws NumberFormatException. How to solve this? A: The problem with the BigDecimal constructor is that it takes a String, but the parameter is of type double. What you need to do is: private static BigDecimal toBigDecimal(String str) { return new BigDecimal(str, NumberFormat.getInstance()); } For Double.parseDouble(str) you need to parse the string to a double first, not new BigDecimal(str, NumberFormat.getInstance()) as you would think.
